In this case, no steps are taken to identify the user, unless there has been obvious fraudulent usage of the BMW Group SpeakUP Line according to Section 4.3.

- the informant has acted in accordance with the guidelines set out in this instruction.

If an informant should nevertheless suffer personal disadvantage as a result of reporting information, he or she is entitled to submit a complaint to the BMW Group Compliance Committee Office (directly or through the BMW Group Compliance Contact or through the BMW Group SpeakUP Line).

4.2 Protection of persons concerned

This does not apply if and as long as there is a danger of evidence being tampered with or the investigations being hindered by the person concerned.

4.3 Fraudulent information

- The message received itself constitutes a violation of the law (e.g. a bomb threat).

The Company will respond to such cases with the appropriate measures under labor law, which may result in prosecution of the associate concerned.

5 General principles for establishing facts in compliance related cases

5.1 Legal framework

All steps taken to establish the facts relating to compliance violations are conducted in accordance with the provisions of the applicable laws, especially with regard to data and Associate protection.

Once the conclusiveness and credibility of the information has been evaluated (Section 5.2), measures to establish the facts of the case are then be conducted by the compliance officer of the Company or if necessary can be supported by Corporate Audit and Corporate Security departments responsible for the investigation. In the event of inquiries conducted by Corporate Security, the CSO (Chief Security Officer) Instruction “Corporate Investigations” needs to be observed.

5.2 Evaluating the conclusiveness and credibility of the information

As a first step, the conclusiveness of the received information is verified. This requires establishing whether the circumstances described – assuming the information is accurate – could conceivably lead to a compliance violation. If specialist knowledge is needed for clarification, the relevant departments are consulted, however without revealing any details or data regarding the parties concerned.

The informant may also have to answer further questions to provide additional details and verify the plausibility of the information and/or evaluate its credibility. There are standardized templates in place for querying informants who used the BMW Group SpeakUP Line.

5.3 Preliminary investigations

The next step is to take measures to establish the facts of the case, without requiring any contact with the person concerned or his or her coworkers.

Appropriate sources of information may include, for example:

- Process documentation
- IT systems
- Documentary evidence
- Information from other public sources, e. g. internet

In individual cases, this may result in further, more specific questions for the informant.

5.4 Evidence protection and notification of persons concerned

Where there are reasonable grounds to suspect a compliance violation, the person concerned and witnesses from his or her field of work are brought in for further clarification.

To prevent potential falsification or destruction, electronic evidence (e. g. emails, files on hard drives) can be secured by the central IT department prior to this. This step is regulated by the process for “Securing electronic data for internal investigations” (with binding checklist), which ensures compliance with existing data and Associate protection requirements.

5.5 Interviews with BMW Group associates

An Associate interviewed as a witness should be given the option of having another person, such as his or her manager, present at the interview.

An Associate interviewed as a person concerned may have a member of the Works Council or his or her attorney attended the interview. However, this is not a mandatory requirement.

Witnesses and the persons concerned are reminded of their obligation to provide information and tell the truth prior to the interview. The same applies to the informant, insofar as he or she is interviewed during the investigation.

5.6 Documentation

The individual steps and outcome of the fact-finding activities are documented in an appropriate manner. In particular, interviews with witnesses and the person concerned are documented in writing.

The documentation is filed in the compliance case management IT system operated by the BMW Group Compliance Committee Office.

5.7 Measures in response to compliance violations

If a compliance violation has occurred, appropriate measures under labor law will be evaluated in consultation with Legal Affairs responsible and Human Resources. Such measures will be taken with the involvement of the direct manager and HR manager responsible. Associate representatives will be allowed to participate in the process in accordance with applicable laws and regulations.

Additional measures to prevent future violations of the law, e. g. the implementation of training programs or appropriate internal checks, will be considered.

5.8 Exception: Financial Services

Where required by law, in the Financial Services segment the relevant departments must be notified of any alleged compliance violations, as soon as possible after the information has been received and its plausibility verified.

6 Data protection and confidentiality

Information involved in compliance consultation and notification will be treated confidentially. This applies to the content of the consultation or notification process as well as to the persons involved, such as those seeking consultation, informants, the persons concerned and witnesses.

Information involved in compliance consultation and notification is processed and saved in compliance with the applicable data protection regulations.
